- Apply sunscreen 365 days of the year.
- Reapply every 2 hours, or more if sweating or in the water.
- Look for a sunscreen with UVA and UVB protection and SPF of at least 15 (SPF30 is recommended).

When are UV rays at their strongest?

- Time of day: between 10 a.m. and 4 p.m.
- Season: strongest in spring and summer but still powerful in fall and winter.
- Latitude & Altitude: the closer you are to the equator or higher in elevation, the more powerful UV rays are, having less distance to travel.

- Clouds: different types of clouds can filter out some UV rays, such a dark, water-filled clouds, but you can still be exposed to UV rays on cloudy days.
- Reflection: Many know that water and sand increase UV exposure, but snow and pavement are also reflective.

Overexposure from UV rays can damage our skin:

- Most skin cancers are associated with UVA and UVB rays.
- UV rays can cause skin to visibly age (wrinkles), prematurely.
- Sunburn is a sign of overexposure, appearing immediately or within a few hours.
- UVA impacts cells deeper in the skin's layers while UVB impacts outer layers.

What has the NSHD been working on?

In total, we administered over 9,000 doses of the COVID-19 vaccine at NSHD. This work would not have been possible without the dedication of our outstanding volunteers.

Our nurse supervisor, Kathleen Platt, has been named interim health officer. She has previously served as interim health officer and will lead our department as we continue the recruitment process for a new health officer.
